

It was 7th September in 2006. Two brothers from England just lost their house. Their parents died in a car crash in 2002 and they had to live alone. They were trying to find a job and a house for a really long time, and they did, but they had so much activities to do, that they weren't able to show often at their job, so they lost it. After that, they lost their house because they weren't able to pay for it. They had no idea what will happen with them next. They became homeless, and were trying to find a job, but no one wanted the brothers to work with them. Finally, the older sibling, Josh, came up with an idea. He wanted to become a thief, and rob banks and shops. The younger brother, Rick, hated this idea at first, but after they didn't earn any money, he decided to try. First, Rick and Josh stole a car from a parking lot to drive around their country, then they robbed their first shop. They scared the woman working at a supermarket, took the money and ran away. The police didn't catch them. After that, they started to commit a crime every single day. They were rich, but the police was looking for them everywhere. Everyone could hear about them from the news and from newspapers. Finally, one day when the brothers were trying to rob a bank, the guard tried to protect the bank from the robbers, and one of them got scared and shot the guard in his leg. Someone heard everything and called the police. Josh and Rick tried to run away, but the police chased them to a forest, where they caught them. Two brothers went to prison for 25 years. The guard survived the attack. Everything ended up good, and people could finally feel safe.
